Progress toward completion of the transaction

This section indicates what step you are currently at within the process of providing contribution instructions.

2

Contribution information

This section displays the contribution amount, the instruction deadline and the effective date of instructions (date of contribution).

Investment instructions provided after the deadline will be applied to the next contribution and will stay in place until new investment instructions are provided.

3

Display of allocations

(1) Current Allocation

This column displays investment allocations currently specified.

(2) New Allocation

When specifying new investment allocations, the sum of the values that you enter in the "Share" column must total 100%. Select the button in the "Fraction" column corresponding to the investment product to which you would prefer any remaining amount be added.

Click the name of an investment product to view details pertaining to that product.

Fractional amounts:

A fractional amount refers to any amount of less than one yen resulting when different investment products are allocated. For example, if contributions of 10,005 yen are to be divided equally between two products, 50% to purchase product A and 50% to purchase product B, the total going to each of the products would be calculated as 5,002.5 yen. However, specifying product A in the "Fraction" column to receive the fractional amount, yields a final conversion at 5,003 yen for product A, and 5,002 yen for product B.

(3) "Confirm" button

Click "Confirm" if the updated details specified are correct.
